BLAZE OF SPLENDOR AND SOCIAL GAIETY

Mardi Gras Ball is a Most Brilliant Success.

NOTABLE COSTUMES OF THE LEADING PATRONS

General Tendency Towards the Comical ---All Arrangements Were Carried Out With Excellent Perfection.

Honolulu has perhaps never seen such a brilliant gathering of the society people of the city than was present at the Mardi Gras carnival in the drill shed last night. The affair was an unqualified success in every respect except one and that was a matter which could not very well be regulated. There was not enough room for the thousand or more people present, a great deal having been used for the boxes and chairs around the hall for the public. It was not until after the midnight hour had passed by that the dancers who were left, found much comfort in dancing. However, there were many features noticed in the big ball which made up for this state of affairs.

In the first place, the Mardi Gras Palace was most beautifully decorated in the manner described in yesterday's Bulletin. Besides the large flags and bunting which hung from the girders and covered up the unsightly walls, the liberal display of Mardi Gras colors and the like, there were hundreds of potted palms and ferns and great festoons of greens. At every possible place, something had been placed to heighten the beauty of the Mardi Gras Palace.

The doors of the hall were opened promptly at 8 o'clock and, even at that time, there were people waiting outside for a chance to get a pick of the seats. From this time until after 9 o'clock, the crowd continued to arrive until every chair in the hall and boxes was occupied and people were standing up near the door.

The band was stationed just above the entrance and there for a half hour or more before the arrival of maskers. Captain Berger and his boys played lively airs. It was necessary for them to take to a ladder to get to this place but they did not mind it for they undoubtedly had the best view of the pageant.

Judge and Mrs. Estee, Mrs. Paul Neumann, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Hawes, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. George Davies, Mrs. Allan White, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Gilman.

It was fully 9:30 o'clock before George Potter, master of ceremonies, was able to get his party of maskers together in order to begin the grand march. Their coming was announced by the appearance of the floor manager and his four assistants on the dancing floor with beribboned wands in their hands.

At the appearance of the head of the column with George Potter leading, the band struck up the grand carnival march and the maskers started down the grand staircase. Following the master of ceremonies were two trumpeters and behind these came the Prince and Princess dressed in rich costumes. A page held up the train of Her Majesty. Following were in the neighborhood of three hundred people in various costumes. Some were easy to pick out while others baffled the keenest until the time for the unmasking.

The maskers marched around to the throne on the Walkiki side of the hall and then the Prince and Princesses, mounting their throne, took their seats. The master of ceremonies then stepped out, bowed low and, from a manuscript, read the following greeting:

May It Please Your Serene Highnesses: An era of unequalled prosperity has blessed your realm. Upon the fruitful earth copious rains have fallen. The argonies of your subjects have borne abroad products of the teeming soil and returned freighted with rich merchandise for the use and adornment of a prosperous people.

Your munificent gifts to public charities, the beautifying of your capital city and the construction of magnificent highways have marked your reign and endeared yourselves to your subjects. The diplomatic tact, the firmness tempered with moderation which has characterized Your Highness' intercourse with foreign States has settled vexed and perplexing disputes and carried the renown of your sagacity to the uttermost parts of the earth. Within your realm rebellious tribes have been subdued and disarmed by kindness, so that now throughout the length and breadth of your principality peace reigns.

Mindful of these many blessings, your grateful subjects, and with them many envoys from beyond the seas, have gathered here to do you homage, and under your gracious patronage make merry and thus testify to their loyalty and the gladness that is within their hearts.

All hail our glorious Prince and gracious Princess! Let the trumpets sound and all proclaim them blessed!

Frank Thompson, the court jester, dressed in the usual costume, "wonderfully and fearfully made," mounted the throne when the master of ceremonies had finished his greeting on behalf of the loving subjects and, for at least ten minutes, kept the vast audience in a continual roar of laughter at his remarks on the "rain." The greeting of the master of ceremonies was burlesqued in a most clever way, the jester taking occasion to hit at the condition of the streets and the Dole regime.

The maskers next took their positions for the opening dances, the Princess choosing Prince David Kawanana as her partner in the dance. After this, came the dances in the order in which they had been arranged. The dancers over, the Prince and Princess mounted the throne once more and began their difficult task of picking out those whom they thought should be awarded the prizes. At a late hour, the maskers were called to the throne where the Princess gave out the prizes.

Mrs. E. D. Tenney, most artistically gotten up as Frou-Frou, was awarded the prize for the most beautiful lady's costume. She received a beautiful Dresden loving cup. The prize for the most original lady's costume was awarded to Mrs. Mary Gunn who wore a costume typifying La Belle France. The dress was most beautifully made and the cap worn by the lady just added the right touch. A tri-color flag was carried. Mrs. Gunn planned and made the costume herself. The make-up was so good that, when the lady walked past the French Consul during the progress of the grand march, he applauded her. After the unmasking, the Comte de Portiers went up and offered his congratulations. The prize for the most comical lady's costume was awarded to Miss N. McLean, who represented "Spoons."

H. A. Adams as Claude Melnotte, took the prize for the most handsome man's costume. Dr. Hutchison, who was dressed as a Hyderabad Indian gentleman, took the prize for the most original man's costume and W. E. McLean as Dusty Willie with the electric nose carried off the honors for the most comical costume.

Supper was served at midnight and it was after 1 o'clock this morning before the last dancers left the hall.

The costumes as a whole were very well gotten up. They showed both forethought and taste, this applying to both the men and the women present. Perhaps the most attractive costumes outside of the ones which carried off the prizes, were those of Mrs. J. S. Walker and Miss Marion Scott who represented two water lilies. They were attractively dressed in short skirts of pink gauze trimmed on the bodices with green satin ribbons. Mrs. C. B. Cooper was a Lady of the Directory. Miss Eva K. Pratt was dressed as a Spanish lady. The Dowager Empress of China—Mrs. W. M. Graham—was one of the most perfectly disguised ladies in the room. She had an escort of a half dozen or more Boxers with swords.

Mrs. Gerrit P. Wilder represented a red hibiscus. She wore an entirely red dress with short skirts. Miss May Davidson appeared as a witch and Mrs. MacDonald as a Daughter of the Revolution. Miss Paula Isenberg was dressed to represent Germania.

The men who made the most fun of the evening were Robert Shingle, Walter Dillingham, C. N. Prouty, Isaac Dillingham, Gerrit P. Wilder, A. Mizner and J. Holt. They were dressed as Dromedaries and their disguise was perfect. Major George Potter ranked among the very best dressed among the men. Had it not been for the fact that he was the master of ceremonies, he would surely have carried off a prize. Much to the astonishment of all, Prince David Kawanana appeared in a dress suit instead of a handsome costume as was fully expected. P. N. Lansdale was in a Colonial costume.

NATURE'S PROVISION FOR MAN

When Nature designed man she provided ample things for his preservation. Man was intended to live and be healthy on vegetation; that was the natural way. The only way to be healthy or to regain lost health is by using nature's remedy and great blood purifier—Kickapoo Indian Sagwa. This is the great Indian remedy, taken direct from nature's unerring laboratory. It is made of simple herbs, roots and barks, and always acts naturally. It searches out the disease; finds the cause of it; slays it, and restores the body to a normal healthy condition. If your liver is sluggish, drowsy, or inactive; if your heart doesn't pump right, palpitate, thumps, sometimes vigorously; and sometimes faintly; if your bowels are inactive, or overactive; if your stomach fails you; if your kidneys fail to act naturally; there is still help for you if you will take Kickapoo Indian Sagwa. You must act quickly. Disease is progressive; you must stop it at once. Kickapoo Indian Sagwa will do it. Hobron Drug Co., agents for the Kickapoo Indian Remedies.
